End Cuts

What is an end cut?

End cuts are pieces of material leftover from previous jobs. Some have various amounts of fabrication already completed on them. To qualify for end cut pricing, they must be less than 20 sq ft, less than 30" in height, and have no matching slabs in inventory. They are located in designated portions of the yard, although NOT ALL material in these sections will qualify for end cut pricing.

Each piece is sold individually by the square foot of usable material, plus tax. Approximately half of the end cuts available are $15/sq ft; but they will range up to $45/sq ft for premium colors. (This does not include any fabrication) Each piece must be verified and priced by one of our project managers.

How much is fabrication?

Because of the many variables involved with a price quote, it is best to provide a drawing to a project manager to review for a custom quote. To get a very rough idea here are some typical prices: $8/sq ft for cutting and handling, $21/sq ft for template and installation, $9/ln ft for flat polished edge, $245/undermount sink. (Don't forget to add the cost of the material)

What 'ready to install' options do you have?

Pre-fabricated islands and table tops are available in the interior stone sales office. They are finished pieces, generally in easy-to-use standard sizes. They are sold 'as is' for $35/sq ft. These typically flawless pieces are made in our spare time to train new artisans or test new techniques.

Can I have my entire kitchen fabricated from end cuts?

No. Though we may have multiple pieces of the same color stone, they usually don't match. Even if you don't notice the difference in the yard, each lot of material has slight variations in color, pattern, and texture that will be obvious when installed together.

If you are on a tight budget, check out our Modesto and Sunrise collections.

Is there anything wrong with the materials?

Most are perfect; just left over pieces from larger jobs, however, some may have scratches, dings, blemishes, or cracks. We strongly recommend making an appointment to approve your selected piece(s) once they have been extracted from inventory and in plain view. This often requires a separate visit depending on the availability of our employees and equipment.

Will you hold my selection until I'm ready for it?

If paid in full, end cuts can be held for up to 30 days. After 30 days, they will be returned to inventory.

Can I get a bulk discount?

Not on 'end cuts'. We do have palletized scraps available for $0.25 per lb (full pallets only) available in the landscape materials yard.

Why is there a shop minimum?

Our fabrication facility is set up to handle typical kitchens and commercial projects. Each job runs through a series of stations with a total of at least eight professionally trained artisans (project manager, templator, material handler, sawyer, waterjet or cnc operator, edge polisher, and installation team). Though we hate to send any project away, it is sometimes more cost effective for small jobs to be finished by another contractor. We still open our end cut inventory for you to purchase.

My job doesn't meet the shop minimum, what now?

You can still purchase your material from us and then arrange for pick up and delivery through another contractor. We have business cards available in the interior stone sales office with contact information for small local fabricators. We, unfortunately, cannot guarantee their work or availability.

What should I bring with me?

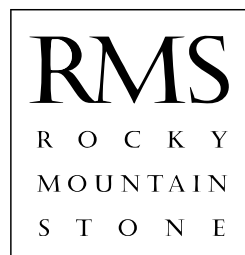

Weather appropriate clothing, a tape measure, a sketch of your project, and something to write on.
